

10th May 2005

Dear colleagues,

You may already be aware of the EMBEC'05 biomedical engineering conference. May 6th has been the planned deadline for submission of abstracts. At present, the number of submitted abstracts is 1347. Following the many emails and calls from a number of people signalling an even increasing interest in the Conference during the last weeks we have decided to extend the above deadline as follows:

The final deadline for abstract submission is 19th June, 2005

To stick to the originally planned time schedule the already submitted abstracts will be processed and decision on their acceptance announced to authors as planned (June 15th). Authors of the abstracts submitted during the above prolonged period will be notified on acceptance by July 27th. For details on electronic abstracts submissions and registration see the Conference web page www.embec05.org.

A group of world-class plenary speakers and invited speakers will present their most recent findings in biomedical engineering. This Conference in Prague will be an exciting place to meet also many others of your colleagues. Prague is also one of the most distinguished European cities, it famous for its history and architecture, for its contributions to culture, science, and music.

We are looking forward to see you in Prague,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'F. Lopot'.

Frantisek Lopot
Organizing Committee

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'Peter Kneppo'.

Peter Kneppo
International Programme Committee

N.B. We do very apologise if you have already submitted your abstract(s) or if you accidentally receive this announcement more than once. It is being circulated to several different address lists, which are technically difficult to cross-check.